

The Constitution of Organic Farm New Zealand Incorporated

1. NAME

The name of the Society will be Organic Farm New Zealand Incorporated, in this Constitution called "the Society"

2. INTERPRETATION

In the interpretation of these Rules (unless the context requires a different construction) – "AMINZ" means the Arbitrators and Mediators Institute of New Zealand.

"Genetic Engineering" refers to the transfer of genes to other organisms of the same species (intra- species transfer), or those transferred between species (inter-species transfer).

"Genetically modified organism" - means any organism in which any of the genes or other genetic material – have been modified by in vitro techniques; or are inherited, or otherwise derived, through any number of replications, from any genes or other genetic material which has been modified by in vitro techniques (Hazardous Substances and New Organisms Act 1996). This definition includes genetically engineered organisms produced by either intra- or inter-species gene transfer, and all offspring of these for an unlimited number of generations.

"National Coordinating Committee" means the elected Executive Committee of OFNZ. "OFNZ" means Organic Farm New Zealand.

"Regional Body" means an OFNZ certification body that is not necessarily geographically defined but rather determined by the area which the establishing group feels comfortable managing. The idea is to have flexibility in the development of regional bodies that will serve to allow small groups to start small and expand, and secondly, to foster the idea that communities feel 'naturally' linked as opposed to externally prescribed.

"The Officers" of the Society are the Chairperson, Deputy Chairperson, Secretary/Treasurer.

Headings appear as a matter of convenience and shall not affect the constitution of these Rules. A reference to any enactment is a reference to that enactment as amended, or any enactment that has been substituted for that enactment.

3. THE PRINCIPLES OF ORGANIC FARMING AND GARDENING

The terms "organics" and "organic" production for the purposes of the Society refers to organic farming and gardening which includes such terms as biological husbandry, eco-agriculture, natural, sustainable and bio-dynamic. Organic production seeks to produce food of optimum quality and quantity, by managing productive ecosystems according to a total concept. This concept endeavours to make the ecosystems sustainable and non-polluting of the environment, while providing a sustainable income to the producer, families and communities. Some of the main principles and methods that are employed in organics aim to:

- Foster beneficial processes and interactions such as occur in natural ecosystems, thus encouraging internal stability rather than heavy reliance on external control measures.
- Reduce external control to the absolute minimum required for maintaining the chosen state of production. Inputs used aim to work as far as possible in conjunction with natural cycles, rather than trying to dominate such cycles.

- Achieve cycles/flows of nutrients and materials that have as few losses as possible. This requires the conservation and recycling of nutrients and organic material.
- Sustain and enhance the fertility and life-supporting ability of the production medium, including its biological, physical and chemical components. For land-based production systems great emphasis is placed on the importance of soil organic matter, and soil flora and fauna.
- Minimise any deleterious environmental effects of particular management practices, including any that may reduce the natural diversity to the detriment of plant and wildlife habitats.
- Ensure the ethical treatment of animals.
- Minimise the use of non-renewable resources.
- Completely ban the use of genetic engineering, genetically modified organisms and any contamination from such activities or products in organic farming and gardening systems and products. No level of GMO contamination, whether accidental or otherwise, of crops, animals, food products, land or water is acceptable.

As such, the term “organic” agriculture for the purposes of OFNZ the Society is based on appropriate stocking rates, consideration of animal welfare, sound rotations using diverse stock and cropping strategies with the extensive but rational use of animal manure and other vegetative residues, and the use of appropriate cultivation techniques. It avoids the use of soluble mineral salt fertilisers, nearly all chemical pesticides and all genetically modified organisms (including accidental contamination from genetically modified organisms). Similar considerations apply, where appropriate, to aquaculture, fishing and wild harvesting.
